Extension of Transitional Policies

On February 23, 2017, the Center for Consumer Information and Insurance Oversight (CCIO) issued guidance that allows the states the option to extend transitional policies for individual and small group health insurance plans to policy years beginning on or before October 1, 2018 provided that all policies end by December 31, 2018.

Pursuant to that option provided to the states by CCIO, the State of Nebraska will allow transitional policies, for both the individual and small group health insurance markets, to continue until December 31, 2018.

The Department would advise insurers to continue to monitor CCIO's website for any subsequent guidance that may be issued on this subject and to follow it accordingly.

As before, all other plans issued after January 1, 2014 must be ACA compliant.

A full copy of the Department's February 24, 2017 notice to companies writing individual and small group health insurance in Nebraska can be found on the Department's website at doi.nebraska.gov/sites/doi.nebraska.gov/files/doc/ExtensionTransitionalPolicies.pdf.

Questions concerning this extension may be directed to Martin Swanson, Administrator for Health Policy, at martin.swanson@nebraska.gov or 402-471-2201.

Case Summaries

Henn v. American Family Mut. Ins. Co.*, 295 Neb. 859, ___ N.W.2d ___ (February 17, 2017)

The United States District Court for the District of Nebraska asked the Nebraska Supreme Court to answer the following certified question: “May an insurer, in determining the ‘actual cash value’ of a covered loss, depreciate the cost of labor when the term ‘actual cash value’ and ‘depreciation’ are not defined in the policy and the policy does not explicitly state that labor costs will be depreciated?” The Court answered the question in the affirmative.

Rosemary Henn submitted a homeowner’s claim under her replacement cost policy with American Family. The claim was related to a variety of hail damage to her home, which American Family determined was covered by the policy. Under the policy, Henn was entitled to receive the actual cash value at the time of loss or receive the full replacement cost value upon completion of the repairs, and under either option the Henn would first receive an actual cash value payment. The policy did not define actual cash value. American Family sent Henn an actual cash value payment which subtracted depreciation costs, including depreciation for both material costs and labor cost.

Though Henn had one year to complete repairs and receive any difference between actual cash value payment and repair costs, she did not make such a claim. Henn filed an action against American Family in Douglas County district court and the case was removed to U.S. District Court by American Family. In filing for summary judgment, American Family argued the policy was unambiguous. However, Henn argued that the term actual cash value is ambiguous and it should not include depreciation of labor. The U.S. District Court found no controlling precedent for this state law question and certified the question to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

To determine the answer to the question, the Supreme Court analyzed whether or not actual cash value unambiguously allows for depreciation of labor in the insurance policy. In its analysis, the Court provides three different approaches to determining actual cash value: market value; when no market value available, then replacement costs; and if neither of the other two can be used, any evidence tending to formulate value may be used, the so called broad evidence rule. All three approaches utilize depreciation. The Court then distinguishes a previous case, Olson v. Le Mars Mut. Ins. Co., where the Court determined from unique facts where allowance for depreciation would have led to underindemnification, but limited this holding to actual cash value policies when the actual cash value of the property, as repaired, does not exceed its actual cash value at time of loss.

The analysis of the approaches and case law led to the Court to determining it is a well accepted, unambiguous concept that actual cash value is the value of the property in its depreciated condition. It then moved to an analysis of whether or not depreciation includes labor.

First, the Court analyzed case law from other jurisdictions, which are split. Relying heavily on Oklahoma, who also follows the broad evidence rule, the Court determined that both materials and labor are relevant facts to consider when establishing the value of property before a loss. It states that the property is a product of both material and labor. The Court distinguishes this from other states where the definition of actual cash value is ambiguous.

Second, the Court mentions that its findings are consistent with a Nebraska Department of Insurance brochure applying depreciation to both materials and labor. This brochure, “Do I Have Hail Damage on My Roof?,” states that depreciation is taken from the whole when calculating actual cash value. The Court quotes the brochure to say “[i]f your roof was worth 75% of the value of a new roof, you will be entitled to 75% of the estimated cost to the repair or replace the damaged are.”

Concluding, the Court holds that the “term ‘actual cash value’ is unambiguous and that depreciation of labor does not lead to underindemnification,” and that the answer to the certified question is in the affirmative.

Liquidation of Penn Treaty and American Network Insurance Companies

On March 1, 2017, Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner Teresa Miller announced the court approval of the liquidation of Penn Treaty and American Network Insurance Companies. Policyholders should be assured that claims will be paid by state guaranty funds pursuant to state law.

CONSUMER AFFAIRS DIVISION

Payment of Overhead & Profit

A number of insurance companies have contacted the Consumer Affairs Division recently to question the Department's position with regard to payment of Overhead & Profit (O & P).

The questions were prompted by the circulation of document, by a roofing contractor, which is purported to be a copy of a January 5, 2013 email from this division. This document, which cannot be authenticated, states that insurance companies pay O & P if more than one or two trades are involved in repair or replacement.

The Nebraska Department of Insurance has not adopted a position on the payment of overhead and profit. No rule has been promulgated, nor has a Bulletin been issued to address the issue.

The decision as to whether payment of O & P is appropriate is one to be made by the insurance carrier based on the requirements of the insurance contract and the circumstances of the claim.

FRAUD DIVISION

Annual Insurance Fraud Conference

The Insurance Fraud Prevention Division (IFPD) will hold its 2017 Annual Insurance Fraud Conference on August 2, 2017, at the Strategic Air and Space Museum. A program is being developed that will hopefully prove beneficial to participants in their fraud fighting efforts. We are looking forward to having Joseph Wehrle, Jr., President and CEO of the National Insurance Crime Bureau, as a conference attendee.

The conference registration brochure is tentatively scheduled to be emailed in late May. If you would like to receive a brochure, email your request to DOI.FraudPrevention@nebraska.gov and use the subject "Conference Brochure Request." Previous conference attendees will automatically receive the registration brochure via email.

The IFPD will also sponsor its Annual Conference for Law Enforcement on August 3 at the same location. This continuing education program has greatly assisted the IFPD with educating law enforcement personnel about the problems associated with insurance fraud. Uniformed law enforcement officers are often on the "front line" in preventing insurance fraud.

Insurance Fraud Recognized by Investigating Officers

Recently, two Omaha police officers responded to a parking complaint involving a damaged vehicle. During that time, a witness came forward advising the officers of what he had observed at the time of the accident involving damage to the vehicle. The accident was investigated by the Omaha Police Department.

The two responding officers reviewed the accident report and noted the information in the report did not match the witness description. Both officers realized this may be a violation of Nebraska's Insurance Fraud Act and contacted the Insurance Fraud Prevention Division (IFPD) with the information they had gathered.

An investigation conducted by the IFPD found that insurance had been purchased for the vehicle after the accident occurred resulting in a $9,944.08 loss to the insurance company. The IFPD forwarded their investigative report to the Douglas County Attorney's Office. On February 27, 2017, a criminal charge of insurance fraud was filed and an arrest warrant was issued. On April 4, 2017 this case was bound over to Douglas County District Court.

The cost of insurance fraud is astronomical and is passed directly to consumers through increased premiums. The training and investigative skills displayed by the officers has a positive impact in the fight against insurance fraud.

Workers' Compensation Fraud - An Unsuspected Consequence

An Omaha physician received a surprise in early 2016 when he began receiving 1099 forms from insurance companies that write workers' compensation policies in Nebraska. A complaint filed by the physician led to a joint investigation being conducted by the Insurance Fraud Prevention Division and the Omaha Police Department.

The physician discovered a discrepancy with the income he received from insurance companies versus what was reflected on 1099 forms. The physician contacted several insurance companies and discovered he had been compensated for providing impairment ratings for patients he had not reviewed their medical histories. The physician reviewed insurance company checks, issued payable to him that he had not received, and found his signature had been forged. He also discovered fraudulent impairment ratings were submitted to insurance companies containing his forged signature.

The Omaha Police Department conducted an investigation pursuant to the forged checks. An employee working for the physician was soon identified as the suspect and arrested. The employee found an opportunity to provide fraudulent impairment ratings to insurance companies that resulted in payments being issued to the physician. Several thousand dollars of insurance company payments were diverted by the physician's employee and deposited into their personal account.

This fraudulent activity resulted in bogus impairment ratings submitted pursuant to workers' compensation claimants. As one would expect, there were both overpayments and underpayments in the handling of the workers' compensation claims. There were also expenses related to investigating the individual cases affected by the employee's submittal of the fraudulent impairment ratings. The Insurance Fraud Prevention Division's investigation is ongoing. At present, the IFPD has sent five cases to the county attorney, representing thousands of dollars in losses, for consideration in filing insurance fraud charges.
