Questions and Answers Concerning Funding Through Pre-Need Trusts

What Is A Pre-Need Trust?

When a pre-need sale is made, funds from the sale are deposited in a federally insured bank within the State of Nebraska until the time of death. These funds may be placed in either an individual trust account or a master trust account (a pool of many individual trusts).

What Are The Requirements For A Pre-Need Trust?

Upon making a pre-need sale, the pre-need seller is required to complete a written agreement and maintain a separate record of each pre-need trust established.

Pre-need trust funds, equaling at least 85% of the retail sales price, are required to be deposited in a federally insured Nebraska bank within 60 days after receipt.

The remaining amount, up to a maximum of 15% of the retail sales price, may be retained by the seller.

Is There More Than One Type Of Pre-Need Trust?

Yes. There are two types of pre-need trusts: irrevocable and revocable.

What Is The Difference Between The Two Types Of Pre-Need Trusts?

Funds placed in an irrevocable pre-need trust may not be withdrawn until the time of death. Funds placed in a revocable pre-need trust may be withdrawn at anytime.

The irrevocable pre-need trust is primarily used to finance services and has a maximum amount set each year by the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services. The revocable pre-need trust is used primarily to finance merchandise and has no maximum amount.

Who Sells Pre-Need?

The establishments which sell pre-need are funeral homes, cemeteries, and monument companies. In order for these establishments to engage in the sale of pre-need, they must first obtain a pre-need seller's license.

In addition, individuals, engaging in the sale of pre-need, must be licensed as agents for their designated seller.
